The New and Improved Nutrition Facts Label – Key Changes

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has finalized a new Nutrition Facts label for packaged foods that will make it easier for you to make informed food choices that support a healthy diet. The updated label has a fresh new design and reflects current scientific information, including the link between diet and chronic diseases.

1. Servings

The number of "servings per container" and the "Serving Size" declaration have been removed and are now in larger and/or bolder type. Serving sizes have been updated to reflect how people eat and drink today. For example, the serving size for ice cream was previously 1/2 cup, now it's 2/3 cup.

There are also new requirements for certain size packages, such as those that are between one and two servings. These are packages a single serving could be consumed in one or multiple settings.

2. Calories

"Calories" is now larger and bolder.

3. Fat

"Added Sugars" in grams and as a percent Daily Value (%DV) is now required because research shows the type of fat consumed is more important than the amount.

4. Added Sugars

"Added Sugars" in grams and as a percent Daily Value (%DV) is now required because research shows the type of fat consumed is more important than the amount.

5. Nutrients

The lists of nutrients that are required or permitted on the label have been updated. Vitamin D and potassium are now required on the label because Americans do not get enough of these nutrients in their diet. Vitamins A and C are no longer required since deficiencies of these vitamins are rare today. The actual amount in grams in addition to the %DV must be provided for vitamin D, calcium, iron, and potassium.

6. Footnote

The footnote at the bottom of the label has been revised to help explain the meaning of %DV. The %DV helps you understand the nutrition information in the context of a total diet.

Manufacturers will need to use the new label by July 26, 2018, and small businesses will have an additional year to comply. During this transition time, you will see the current Nutrition Facts label or the new label on products.
